Building a Greener Future - BuildForce Canada Report

Today BuildForce Canada released the attached report, entitled Building a Greener Future, which indicates that retrofitting Canada's residential, commercial, and institutional building stock to incorporate sustainable fuel sources, technologies, and materials could require as many as 57,000 additional construction workers and generate more than $81 billion in new construction investments by 2032.

The press release for today's report is available online here.
